Talmadgeites Lose Battle To Force Seal Order

By M. L. ST. JOHN

After approximately four and one-half hours of debate on the controversial governorship, the House Tuesday defeated a resolution ordering Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson, Jr., to affix the Great Seal of the State on all orders signed by Gov. Herman Talmadge.

Vote on the measure was 90 against and 89 for, until Speaker Fred Hand cast a vote for it and tied the count. On a tie vote, however, the resolution failed. Talmadge Floor Leader Robert Elliott, of Muscogee, immediately served notice he would ask the House to reconsider its action. Supporters of Lt. Gov. M. E. Thompson labeled the resolution as a political move intended to intimidate the Secretary of State into recognizing Talmadge as Governor. Fortson, as yet, has not affixed the seal to orders either by Thompson or Talmadge. The Talmadge forces said the General Assembly had a right to instruct the Secretary of State on fixing the seal. They said the seal is necessary for the orderly carrying out of State business. The Thompson forces declared the Legislature had no right to order an elective official to recognize a person as Governor until the courts decide whether or not this person is Governor. Prior to the vote on the resolution, the House defeated, 90 to 80, a motion by Rep. Bernard Nightingale, of Glynn County, to give the Secretary of State instructions on

Low of 14 Forecast for Today As Icy Blasts Tumble Mercury

Record Cold Wave Sets U. S. A-Shiver

Swift, icy winds sent Georgia temperatures tumbling Tuesday as the Winter's most severe cold wave, moving out of a blizzard-wrapped Middle West, set most of the nation shivering.

A chattering low of 14 degrees was forecast for Atlanta today, following Tuesday's wintry blasts which sent temperatures skidding 30 degrees, from 48 at 7 a. m. to 18 at 2 a. m.

Snow Grips New York, East Coast

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(UP)—The Southern tip of the Winter's worst storm and cold wave, which had gripped the Midwest during the weekend, swept onto the Eastern seaboard Tuesday night bringing furious snow squalls and a 27-degree drop in temperature. In New York City, the thermometer dropped from 49 degrees at 2 p. m. to 22 at 9 o'clock Tuesday night and was expected to dip to 10 degrees in the early morning hours. New Jersey, upper New York State and part of Southern New England also were lashed by the storm.

Foes Declare Primary Bill 'Tyrannical, Dictatorial'

By JOHN COURIC

The Harris White Primary Bill was blasted as "tyrannical, dictatorial and leading toward Georgia's political domination by a small group" Tuesday as citizens who are against the bill had their say before the State Senate's special Judiciary Committee. The hearing, limited Tuesday to white opponents of the measure which would disfranchise Negroes in Georgia, saw strong opposition from the League of Women Voters and was marked by a flurry of excitement when two Negroes, who said they represented the National Maritime Union, were denied admission to the Senate chamber. A red-haired white man, who gave his name as Robert E.

Hawkes, business agent of the union at Savannah, was spokesman for the Negroes who waited outside the chamber. They were accompanied by another white man from the union who gave his name as James E. Williams. The Negroes, who gave their names as Fred Anthony and Henry E. Bullard, later left the Capitol, when advised to do so by Night Chief A. J. Holcombe of the Atlanta Police Force. Several Senators expressed resentment at what they considered heckling on the part of the union men. About 10 other Negroes also were refused admittance to the hearing. Meanwhile, Gov. Herman Talmadge announced he would appear before the Committee today when the hearing will be for proponents of the bill. The series of hearings will be concluded Thursday when those against the measure will be given another opportunity to present their views. Highlighting opposition to the Harris Bill was a speech by Mrs. Leonard Haas, President of the Georgia League of Women Voters. Mrs. Haas presented the viewpoint of the League. Slowly and analytically, she outlined the League's objections to the measure and replied to state.

Says Cheaper A-Bomb Reduces U. S. Security

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Atomic Scientist J. H. Rush said Tuesday that atom bomb manufacture has become comparatively cheap and "it would be disastrous to place too much confidence in a feeling that other nations can't build atom bombs because they don't have the funds."

The same is true, he said in an interview, as to the matter of America's technical "know-how" in making the bombs. Rush is Secretary-Treasurer of the Federation of American Scientists and was an experimental physicist at the Oak Ridge atomic plant in Tennessee during the war.

He said that materials for the bomb can be produced at the Hanford, Wash., plant that cost $326,000,000 or at the new Chalk River Canadian plant. The Oak Ridge plant cost around $1,000,000,000 and the nation gambled some $2,000,000,000 in all to develop atomic bombs.

"No nation intent on rushing into bomb production will bother to repeat our extravagance," Rush said. He explained that it had been found that it is cheaper to use plutonium rather than concentrated U-235, both of which come from uranium. A way was found to by-pass the expensive U-235 processes used at Oak Ridge, he added.

Rush said, however, that the Oak Ridge plant remains useful in the production of atomic energy.

Government officials concerned with atom developments withheld comment on Rush's statements.

The Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy called Tuesday for testimony from James B. Conant, President of Harvard University and an adviser on atomic matters.

Security matters came to the fore, following secret testimony by Elder Statesman Bernard M. Baruch Tuesday. He was said to have testified that Russia appears to have had some success digging into U. S. atomic secrets.

Three Killed, 60 Injured in Crash As Flaming Oil Sets Train Ablaze

KINGSBURG, Cal., Feb. 4.—(UP)—A streamlined Southern Pacific all-coach train, carrying 400 passengers from Los Angeles to San Francisco, rammed into a tank-trailer truck Tuesday, spilling flaming oil over the first 11 cars of the 15-car train. At least three and possibly six persons were killed and from 60 to 100 persons were injured, scores so badly hurt or burned that they were rushed to hospitals in ambulances and private cars. Among the passengers on the speeding train was Amos Alonzo Stagg, the "Grand Old Man" of football. He was not injured but seven members of the San Francisco Shamrock hockey team were taken to hospitals. The Southern Pacific placed the casualties at three dead and 50 injured but Kingsburg police said that six were killed and "at least 100 injured." The Red Cross placed the injured number at 60. One of the dead was identified as Charles Anderson, a Negro porter. The Red Cross disaster unit in Fresno said some of the persons hospitalized were "very badly injured." A rush call went into King's County General Hospital at Hanford, Cal., for blood plasma. The orange-colored Daylight, scheduled to arrive in San Francisco at 8:30 p. m. (11:30 p. m. EST) crashed into the truck broadside at the Sierra Street crossing at the Northern-city limits, shearing off the tank and dragging it 200 yards along the right of way. Flames roared up from the tank and enveloped the first 11 cars of the all-metal coach streamliner, leaping 200 feet into the air and burning for at least two hours before fire equipment from Kingsburg and surrounding towns brought the fire under control as the fuel it fed on was consumed. Screaming panic-stricken passengers stampeded the aisles toward the front and rear of the train as they sought to escape from the blanket of flames that wrapped two dining cars in an inferno at the point where the fore-section of the tanker was left behind. Southern Pacific officials termed

GOP Faction Battles Tax-Slash Compromise

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Warring factions within the Republican Party gave a cool reception Tuesday to a tax-slashing compromise which would give small taxpayers twice as much relief—in percentage terms—as those with big incomes.

The compromise was proposed by Chairman Allen, Republican, Illinois, of the House Rules Committee, seeking to offset what he termed disadvantages in an earlier 20 percent "across the board" tax-cut bill introduced by Rep. Knutson, Republican, Minnesota. Allen's bill would give a 20 percent tax reduction on incomes up to $2,500; 17 percent on $2,500 to $5,000; 15 percent on $5,000 to $10,000, and 10 percent on all incomes over $10,000.

Rep. Engel, Republican, Michigan, leader of GOP anti-Knutson forces, described Allen's compromise as "an admission by the Republican leadership that the Knutson bill is dead." But, he said, he is not satisfied with the compromise. "Allen's bill is still not taking care of the little man as I would like to see it done," Engel told reporters. He said the compromise, while taking the edge off Knutson's proposed relief for big incomes, "doesn't help the little man any more than Knutson does."

Engel said he wants to increase exemptions to take low-income earners off the tax rolls completely. He said he is receiving hundreds of letters from all over the country supporting his position. Rep. Mason, Republican, Illinois, battling for Knutson's measure, took a firm "no compromise" stand. "I am for the 20 percent cut across the board," he told reporters. "We must give higher reductions to those who need it most. That means the lower income group," Allen said in a statement. "For the past six years millions of the lower income group were working many hours overtime. They made high wages. Naturally, many obligated themselves in purchasing homes by monthly payments. "Now these people are limited to 40 hours a week without overtime. They are unable to meet their obligations. Without some relief they will lose their homes. This must not happen."

Vandenberg and Connally Refuse Moscow Mission

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(UP)—Sens. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, and Tom Connally, Democrat, Texas, Tuesday refused President Truman's bid to attend the Moscow Peace Conference as full-time delegates. But they agreed to join the party later when their presence may be needed to demonstrate the Senate's nonpartisan support of American foreign policy. The Senate's two top spokesmen on foreign affairs made their position known after a luncheon conference with Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

SARTORIAL FEATHERS RUFFLED IN MANHATTAN

Canary Dinner Jacket Gets Bird

By BEV YOUNG

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The men of Manhattan, from clothier to gay blades about town, turned thumbs down Tuesday on the latest word in sartorial elegance—a canary yellow dinner jacket ensemble.

"It's ridiculous," snorted Grover Whalen, New York's official "greeter" and one of the city's fashion-plate landmarks. The Merchant Tailors and Designers Association, meeting in Chicago, proposed the nifty style scheme of canary yellow dinner jacket with brown trousers, ecru shirt and waffle-cut gold studs.

Fifth Avenue's succinct reaction to the gaudy getup was summarized by Hudson Budd, of the Samuel Budd Shirt Company. "Sounds like an end man in a minstrel to me," Budd chuckled. "We wouldn't turn out anything like that. Our customers wouldn't care for it."

The Association said color was to be the keynote in men's clothes this year, with comfort running a close second.

"I am for the 20 percent cut across the board," he told reporters. "We must give higher reductions to those who need it most. That means the lower income group," Allen said in a statement. "For the past six years millions they were "so cheerful and inspiring." "Even the old codgers," he continued, "are getting tired of funeral clothes. They are decking themselves out in wild-patterned shorts that look like they came out of the jungle, lurid shirts, ties and robes. The tired-tan raincoats are blue and yellow and green now."

But the men who would tailor such colorful creations didn't cotton to the Association's style trend. From Herman Holzknecht, manager of Journeymen Tailors Union No. 1 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers (CIO), came this observation: "It's a batty idea, but the merchant tailors have to do something to ward off the encroachment of ready-made clothes. But now they're extreme. Who ever heard of a bunch of guys running around in canary dinner jackets?"

Fashion-conscious Sherman Billingsley took a practical view of the situation: "I think," said the proprietor of the swank Stork Club, "it's a fine idea for men to dress like that—provided they go to the Club El Morocco. "Canary yellow dinner jackets!" shouted the merchandise counselor for men's wear at Macy's Department Store. "Just ask them if they know where we can lay our hands on some good old-fashioned black ones!"

Education in Wrong Pew?

A Senate-passed bill calling for addition of a twelfth grade to the common school system has been referred to the House State of Republic Committee, and thereby caused some discussion. Some proponents of the bill observed that educational bills normally would be sent to educational committees.

Speaker Fred Hand, who sent the bill to the Talmadge-dominated State of Republic Committee, said the latter committee "is vitally interested in education."

Stabs Rival For Taking Her 'Date'

Because she said Miss Virginia Bryant, 23, who lives in a trailer at Peters and Park streets, "took her man away from her," Miss Lillian Backus, 25, of 331 Cooper St., S. W., waylaid Miss Bryant late Monday night and stabbed her five times in the arm and the head, according to Radio Patrolmen E. B. Lyle and R. H. Fleming.

Miss Bryant is in Crawford Long Hospital in "fair" condition, and Miss Backus is held at Police Headquarters on a charge of "suspicion of stabbing." Police say Miss Backus has admitted the stabbing.

Police quote Miss Backus as telling the following story: "I had a date Sunday night with Dan Turner, of 1722 DeFoor Ave., N. W., but he didn't show up. I then learned that he went out with Virginia Bryant. So I waited until she finished her work at the Atlanta Woolen Mills late Monday night and stabbed her. If I could have found Turner I would have stabbed him, too."

Arnall Book Gets High Praise Of MacCracken

"The Shore Dimly Seen," recently published book of Former Gov. Ellis Arnall, is a work of great literary value and forms a valuable contribution to the literature, in the opinion of Dr. Henry N. MacCracken, President Emeritus of Vassar College.

Interviewed at Agnes Scott College where he is appearing in a series of lectures on English literature, Dr. MacCracken said he was very much impressed by the significance of Arnall's book and added he felt it definitely is one of the better literary works to be published recently.

The noted educator was reluctant, however, to discuss Arnall's possibilities of becoming a Presidential candidate in 1948 despite a newspaper statement attributed to him, in which he was quoted as calling the former Georgia Governor the best candidate.

MacCracken began his Agnes Scott lecture series Tuesday night when he spoke on "Literature and Freedom" before a large audience in Presser Hall. He will give one other public lecture on Wednesday of next week. During the remainder of his two-week visit at the College he will give five student talks.

Fulton Board Asks Bids on School Addition

The Fulton County Board of Education has asked for bids to build an addition to the Benteen School. The bids will be opened at the Courthouse at 2 p. m. Feb. 18.

The Board Tuesday announced that if a satisfactory bid could be secured for the annex, more contracts for other schools would be advertised at an early date.

The Board approved two bills, to be introduced in the General Assembly, one giving it authority to condemn land for school purposes, and the other giving it authority to invest bond money until it can be wisely spent.

Architects were authorized to prepare plans for annexes to the Harris Street School in East Point, the West Haven School and the East Point Negro school. Supt. Jere A. Wells was instructed to request CPA approval on annexes to the Hapeville High School and the Mason School and for new schools at Carey Park, Fairburn and Blandtown.

For $1,200 per acre, the Board purchased from Mrs. E. W. Milner a plot of land on Lindbergh Drive for relocation of the Rock Springs School. A surveyor will determine whether the tract contains seven or eight acres.

WAA Sale Nets Only 200 Vehicles

After camping out for two days and nights prior to War Assets Administration's East Point surplus sale, "first come, first served" vehicle sale, Southeastern veterans bought only 200 of the 564 vehicles on sale.

A WAA spokesman labeled ex-GIs "discriminating" and said the 30 passenger cars and "best" trucks were snapped up immediately after the sale began Tuesday morning by vets who came many hours ahead of the time warehouse doors opened.

WAA will offer rejected vehicles, which include mostly heavy trucks and trailers, to RFC Monday. On Feb. 17 commercial buyers will be offered any remaining vehicles at a spot bid sale at the East Point warehouse.

But Mrs. A. R. Taxi drivers, some of them realists, say Mrs. McDaniel is the best tipper in Atlanta... that she is likely to drop a couple of dollars velvet for a 1.40 fare every now and then, and that at holiday time, it's better than a trip with Santa Claus to pick up The Angel. "Why," she's wonderful. Just as sweet as she can be. Talks to us when we want to talk, keeps still when we don't want to talk. And she's the biggest-hearted woman in town."

Mrs. McDaniel, who describes herself as a semi-blond, average-looking woman, has never had a car. She signals cabs constantly, figures they are as cheap as owning her own automobile, and it's just fine to have a chauffeur of her own to drive her around. She gets perfect service on her daily 7:15 a. m. call, has never been in a taxi accident, and never watches the meter.

Only once has a cab given her trouble, and another driver told us that. "He went to pick up a Miz Angel," he said, "and there was Miz McDaniel. He plumb drove off and left her."

Watch for apple pie to move back into its stellar role in the American diet. We watched gastronomic history in the making yesterday at our grocery, as women squealed in delight at the sight of frozen pie in the freezer unit. WHO SAYS ITS COLD?

Downtown, the newsboy near the Ansley Hotel was calling, "18 degrees in the shade a-comin'!" but behind the grim curtain of Winter foreboding was springing its golden draperies over ashen hedges. Winter grass was lushly green where the last leaves of Winter had scurried away. Small boys with red-tipped fists flew kites over flat stretches of red clay where soon a huge apartment will be built. A woman piled a rake, a pair of pruning shears and a can of white paint into her car at the neighborhood hardware store. Dad, in the front yard, leaned over his favorite driver, showing the boys how to grip a golf club. Spring is a-comin', too, and not far off.

She had just stepped off a bus opposite the Doctors Building, and was waiting for the light to change. The wind was blowing boisterously, freezing cold, and the girl lay on a coat far too flimsy for the sort of day it was. Her hair had escaped from her bandana and was stringing out into the gale. She tugged at the edges of the blanket, trying to wrap her arms tighter around it. On one of her readjustments of the cover, she must have caught a glimpse of a little face, for she pulled back the blanket and Atlanta police said the billfold had been removed by a pocket-slitting pickpocket who apparently used a razor blade. It is the first case of this type reported in several years.

Police Chief Selection Faces Fulton Body

The wearisome job of finding a chief for the Fulton County Police Department will be taken up again today when the County Commission, meeting at 2:30 p. m., accepts the resignation of Herbert Jenkins, elected Monday as Chief of the Atlanta force.

Jenkins was made chief of the County force three weeks ago. Proponents of the plan for a unified County of Atlanta would like to see Jenkins retain his present status as chief of both Departments, but many practical difficulties are in the way.

Since the resignation of Chief George Mathieson, the County has had three chiefs, Hugh Williams, who died shortly after his selection; C. E. Mitchell, who was deposed three weeks ago, and Jenkins, who replaced Mitchell.

It was understood Tuesday that Jenkins would have the active backing of Commissioner R. L. Doyal, but considered likely that the new chief would not be chosen for some time.

2 Patrolmen Charged With Assault, Battery

Warrants charging City Patrolmen W. R. Herndon and Dave Harris with assault and battery were issued Tuesday by Judge Robert Carpenter, of the Civil Court of Fulton County.

The complainant was Mrs. W. C. Littlefield, of 729 Pulliam St., S. W., who alleged the patrolmen blackjacked her husband Monday night. She said he was first treated for injuries at Grady Hospital and then taken to Ponce de Leon Infirmary. Carpenter scheduled a hearing on the warrants for Feb. 11.

Littlefield was arrested by Harris and Herndon on a charge of disorderly conduct-resisting arrest.

2,000 Camellia Fans Attend Annual Show

By ANN WOOD

The hat that took the cake—but literally, my dears!—was designed by Mrs. Alvin Cates, Jr., out of a wisp of green fishnet and a wreath of rosy camellias for the Second Annual Camellia Show held Tuesday at the Georgian Terrace Hotel.

Her prize was a magnificent cake, iced in pale green and bedecked with spun sugar camellias and real leaves.

The 2,000 fanciers of the waxy Camellia Japonica, who came from throughout Georgia to see the show, all halted before the exhibit of camellia-trimmed hats to stare and admire.

Prize-winning Mrs. Cates, who has never before decorated a hat and never, ever raised a camellia, says she whipped up her creation in a few hours Monday night. She used some of the Madame Adel camellias grown by Phil Schulz, Atlanta architect, who also walked off with prizes, including a first for his corsage arrangement.

She pinned her hat so securely to the dummy model head that it couldn't be removed to be photographed. "You know how it is," she said.

Mrs. Green Warren's third-prize hat, which attracted the most comment, had six small leather kittens prancing among some semi-double blush camellias. Mrs. Robert Troutman, Jr., who won second place in the hat division, tossed some rosy camellias inside the brim of a big, black picture hat.

The jam-packed crowd, which milled inside the ballroom where the camellias were displayed, also gazed a little over the still life arrangements.

In one, designed by Mrs. William Conard, two cold white hands were outstretched, each holding a single crimson bloom. (See Doris Lockerman's Column, Page 3).

In another, camellia blooms adorned a bronze, Oriental head.

Prize winners in all classes were:

Mrs. Frank Murphy, of Marshallville, the McBurney perpetual trophy for the best bloom in show.

Schulz, the Peachtree Garden Club's perpetual trophy to its member having best bloom in show.

Mrs. Samuel Combs Porter, the specimen sweepstakes award.

Mrs. L. L. Dodd and Mrs. K. D. Martin, award for best indoor collection in the show. Mrs. T. G. Smith, of McLean, best outdoor collection.

Mrs. William A. Smith, best outdoor bloom grown in Atlanta latitude.

In the decorative classes, ribbons were awarded to:

Mrs. Ewing Miles and Mrs. Bolling Jones, III, blue ribbon for Colonial Dutch arrangement; Mrs. Erwin Dicks, red ribbon, for modern arrangement; Mrs. G. Nicholson, Jr., yellow ribbon for Victorian arrangements.

In still life with camellias, large group, Mrs. Harold Patterson, blue ribbon; Mrs. G. Bower Spearman, red ribbon; Mrs. Dick Rich, yellow ribbon.

In still life small group, Mrs. Conard, blue ribbon; Mrs. Stuart Witham, Jr., red ribbon; Mrs. William Nixon, yellow ribbon.

Winners in the corsage section were Schulz, Mrs. S. C. Porter and Mrs. Julia Felton.

SWEEPSTAKES WINNER—Mrs. Samuel Combs Porter amassed the largest total of points at the Second Annual Camellia Show held Tuesday at the Georgian Terrace. Here she holds the blossom judged best indoor-grown bloom in show, and collection of indoor-grown camellias which she entered. She stands before a large lady heart decorated with the beautiful corsage entries.

ments made previously by those who favor the Bill.

"This Bill puts every Georgian's right to vote in jeopardy. This Bill opens the door for a dictatorship. The Bill reaches down and repeals local laws, ordinances, charter amendments, etc. Confusion will result as to which local laws are in effect, and which are not," she declared.

The Harris Bill "will not circumvent the United States Supreme Court's ruling declaring that Negroes must be allowed to vote in primaries," Mrs. Haas asserted.

"The proponents of the Bill fail to point out that opinions of Judges of the U. S. Supreme Court—the highest court in the land—have implied that the Federal courts will enforce the right of the Negro to vote in whichever election is the real election—the General election or the Primary," she said.

"In all probability, the time that the Negro can be kept from voting in the Primary will be short, no matter what is done. In the meantime, if this Bill is passed, the ballot of every voter is endangered because too much power has been put in the hands of one man," she continued.

Mrs. Haas stated some have said no other solution has been offered to Georgia's problem concerning Negro voting. She then pointed out that such a solution has been offered in the form of an educational qualifications bill. She explained that the League has not taken a stand on this measure, but added she wished to mention it as a matter of record.

Mrs. Haas admitted that many primary laws have been written into the Democratic Party rules which Former House Speaker Roy V. Harris, who wrote the White Primary Bill, wishes to substitute for legal regulations.

"The League cannot see that this offers any security. Party rules have been violated in the

CHAIR RULES OUT SARCASTIC MOTION

Rep. Walter Harrison, of Jenkins, a Thompson supporter, sarcastically introduced an amendment to the Talmadge-sponsored resolution ordering Secretary of State Ben Fortson, Jr., to affix the Great Seal of State on all orders by Gov. Herman Talmadge. The amendment would order the State Supreme Court to rule in favor of Herman Talmadge on all issues. Speaker Fred Hand said he would have to "reluctantly" rule the amendment out of order.

Solons Schedule Public Hearings On Gambling Bill

Members of the House Special Judiciary Committee favor action to halt gambling on sports events, but they have delayed action on Rep. "Muggsy" Smith's bill until a public hearing can be conducted.

The bill would provide prison terms for gambling at sports events.

Committee Chairman Ben Cheek, of Franklin County, said the committee would announce a later date for public hearings. President Earl Mann of the Atlanta Crackers, Coach Wally Butts, of the University of Georgia, Coach Bobby Dodd, of Georgia Tech, and other sports officials will be invited to testify.

past. What is to keep them from being violated in the future?"

The League President added there is no provision for a party registration fee under present rules. "But," she continued, "there will be no law or rule to prevent the charging of a fee."

She also discussed other regulations which she said should not be removed from the State's law books, and said appeals or contests made to an unregulated Democratic Party could go straight back to the persons accused of irregularities.

D. D. Veal, a Democratic Party official from Eatonton, also expressed the opinion that the Harris Bill would not long prohibit Negroes from voting. Veal then read from a U. S. Supreme Court decision which he said indicated that the court would rule that Negroes can vote in Democratic primaries whether primaries were regulated by State laws or not.

Judge Claude Pittman, of Cartersville, spoke on the eradication of protective laws for primaries.

Judge Pittman said the Harris Bill reminded him of a song called "The Last Roundup." Substituting the word "primary" for the word "dogies," he said, "Get along little primary, you're headed for the last roundup," and indicated that he believed that the Democratic Party might revert to nominating conventions rather than primaries for selecting State officials.

The Rev. Matthew M. Warren, Rector of All Saints Church, declared "this thing is against God and against the integrity of the State, because it is a way to get around the Constitution."

First speaker to appear in opposition to the bill was R. W. Hayes, of Chamblee, youthful veteran of World War II.

HE BITES HAND THAT FED HIM . . . ESCAPES WITH PASTOR'S CLOTHES

The Rev. Jimmie Mayo, Pastor of the Apostolic Assembly of the Pentecostal Tabernacle, has asked police to find the man who bit the hand that was feeding him.

The minister told police officials that a man, giving him his name as W. J. Mason, appeared at the church recently, stating he was down and out as the result of a strike in New Orleans.

"I fed him and gave him a place to sleep," the Rev. Mr. Mayo told police. "Last Sunday he assisted me, teaching a Sunday School class, and had helped me paint a part of my home."

"Sunday night he disappeared. And also missing were several of my shirts, a suit of clothes and $20 belonging to the church."

WHY WAIT?

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Her husband was away getting the doctor. She was all alone. So says Mrs. Shirley Beard, 20.

minutes, summarized his opposition to the bill with three objections.

He declared: "First, there is imminent danger of forcing colored citizens into a colored bloc due to present antagonism. Second, this measure would turn the Democratic Party in Georgia over to machine rule, and I don't trust rule by any group of power-greedy politicians. Third, this bill is thoroughly undemocratic, and is tyrannical, since it deprives the Negro of the right to vote in a primary, which is tantamount to an election."

"Don't sink back to the period of 1865," he pleaded. "Free Georgia of its reconstruction complex. If the Negro was good enough to carry a gun in the war and pay taxes, he should vote."

Mrs. H. H. Trotti, of Decatur, also touched upon the subject of taxation for Negroes when she declared: "If you are going to disfranchise colored people, knock off their taxes."

Discussing the proposal which would place the Democratic Party in the status of a private club, Mrs. Trotti commented: "I will not be an applicant for membership in that club."

"I want to be recorded as opposed to his measure. I'm not going to lie down and let a machine run over me without a protest. This is my protest."

Paul Akin, of Cartersville, said he favors a white primary, but is against the present bill, declaring it would give too much power to the Governor of Georgia. Terming the measure "the most dangerous ever introduced in the General Assembly," he said he knows of many Talmadge partisans in his home County who are against it.

"If this bill were submitted to the white people of Georgia," he declared, "they would not support it."

The Rev. John Wilson, of LaGrange, read a message from the LaGrange Ministerial Association, which said that body unanimously voted disapproval of the white primary bill and protested its passage. The message termed the bill "un-Christian, unwise, undemocratic and unconstitutional and contrary to the doctrines of the church, the State and the Nation."

Other speakers against the measure included Robert R. Jackson, of Atlanta; James M. Crawford, of Cornelia; Horace L. Davis, of Atlanta; H. M. Harris, Douglasville; the Rev. Edward Small, Episcopal Minister of Gainesville; the Rev. James Sneed, President of the Atlanta Methodist Ministers' Association and Pastor of Cascade Heights Church; the Rev. Sumner Guerry, of Decatur, and Bishop J. M. Walker, of the Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta.

Declared Bishop Walker: "Use of the inevitable friction between whites and Negroes to further political ends is a dangerous instrument."

Earlier Tuesday, the Senate Committee appointed to study white primary legislation, reported on its visit to South Carolina.

The Committee quoted Tom Pearce, of Columbia, Chairman of the South Carolina Democratic Executive Committee, to the effect that the "club" election plan had worked extremely smoothly.

However, the Committee said, Pearce acknowledged it had been necessary "on occasion" to call on Democrats to turn out in force in the General Election in order to assure election of Democratic nominees.

CLOSED FOR CONCRETE PAVING

A Sign of Wise Investment

Many communities are looking forward to the day when their highways and streets can be rebuilt to fit traffic.

Concrete pavement means the end of spring break-up ills—frost boils, mud and ruts. Seasonal load restrictions, dust and the inconvenience of constant road tinkering can be forgotten.

Concrete stands up under all legal loads in all weather. It permits speed with safety. It cuts driving costs to motorists. It reduces road maintenance costs.

Citizens Group Studies City, County Unity

Initial plans for a calm, dissection study of city and county operations, functions with a view to a workable unification of metropolitan governments were discussed Tuesday night at an organizational meeting of a citizens' committee recently named by Chairman Clarence Duncan, of the Fulton County Commission.

Both Duncan and W. E. Mitchell, President of the Georgia Power Company, who was named chairman of the Unification Investigation Committee, stressed the group was a proceed on no preconceived ideas, but would "cut up the whole in little pieces," find what made local government tick, and then attempt a refitting of pieces to eliminate duplication of services.

The committee, as authorized by the County Commissioners, will seek to provide a practical plan for bringing about the necessary changes and for putting the new system into effect. A savings of tax dollars while increasing needed metropolitan service is a goal. Members of the committee represent all sections of the county.

Overdue Plane Had Prisoners On First Hop

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A Navy plane reported missing Tuesday night along the middle Atlantic coast was sent from the Norfolk Naval Air Station Tuesday with a load of prisoners for the Naval Prison at Portsmouth, N. H., Fifth Naval District Headquarters said Tuesday night.

It cleared Portsmouth, N. H., at 1:55 p. m. Tuesday on the return trip and was due at Norfolk a little after 6 p. m.

On board, according to the Norfolk Naval Air Station, were the following men, all stationed at the Norfolk Naval Air Station and whose addresses were unavailable Tuesday night:

C. A. Urban, Chief Aviation Pilot, the pilot of the plane; Lt. (JG) B. W. Schofield, Co-pilot, and two crew members, J. M. Dawdy, Aviation Machinist's Mate, 2-C, and W. R. Weeks, Aviation Radioman, 3-C.

The Norfolk Air Station reported the plane intended to fly the return trip over Boston, New York and Chincoteague Island at 3:31 p. m., it was reported over New York at 8,000 feet, flying over the bad weather. At 4:46 p. m., it reported itself over Washington, which it circled for about 25 minutes at 13,000 feet, and then said it was coming direct to Norfolk.

The Navy radio picked up the plane weakly, at 6:17 p. m., which said it was lost and heading West. That was the last word heard from the plane, which had gas to last it until 8:25 p. m.

Hardy Audience Ignores Weather To Applaud Music

By HOWELL JONES

A small but enthusiastic group of Atlanta Music Club members braved the sub-freezing weather Tuesday night to hear the first performance of winning compositions in the Georgia Federation of Music Club's annual statewide Compositions Contest in an informal musicale at the Atlanta Woman's Club Auditorium.

Possibly the outstanding work, "String Quartet in C-Sharp Minor," by Goodrich C. White, Jr., entered posthumously by his parents, was presented on a record made by the Roth String Quartet. The composition, however, lost some of its effectiveness as the result of a bad recording which distorted its tone.

The program also included a group of secular songs by Mary Foreman with "White Seal's Lullaby" the winning entry. Theme and Variations for Violin and Piano, by Harry Viser, Jr., winner in that class; "The Twenty-third Psalm," a sacred song by Charles Carden Snow, and a group of pieces by Franciszek Zachara with Poem, opus 12 the winning entry in its class.

CRASH

The low loss of life "miraculous" and attributed it to the all-steel construction that kept the flames on the outside and the fact that the most intense fire was generated in the two dining cars.

Machinist's Mate 3/c Phil Walker, returning to San Francisco to join his ship, said:

"I felt the train speeding along and suddenly felt a shock. Then the entire car was enveloped in flames shooting up outside. Everyone got panicky and started shrieking. Several tried to kick out windows and jump."

A coach-load of Army enlisted men at the rear of the train worked heroically to lead passengers from the burning cars. The GI's raced through the sheets of flame to enter the cars, kick out the windows and in some instances throw burning victims bodily out the windows to rescue persons who wrapped them in blankets.

The blunt-nosed Diesel engine struck the oil tank truck and trailer between 3 p. m. and 3:15 p. m. (6:15 EST) at the paved highway crossing 20 miles South of Fresno.

Officials said the crossing is protected by an automatic wig-wag signal which was waving its red light as the huge Diesel truck nosed out into the crossing.

It was a full-view crossing, Southern Pacific officials said, and the vision was not obstructed by any railroad cars drawn up on a siding. They said a work crew was rushed to the scene at the first report of the wreck, and the "shack car" that brought the crew might have led to reports that the crossing vision was impaired.

"When the train stopped," an official Southern Pacific announcement said, "two dining cars were at the point of impact at the crossing."

Both dining cars were destroyed by the flames, one other car was badly burned and eight others less seriously damaged. Four coaches were undamaged.

The truck driver, Philip Lee Mayer, 21, of Fresno, was not injured. The rear half of his truck and trailer were torn away, but his cab remained intact.

The injured were taken to hospitals in Kingsburg, Selma, Dinuba and Fresno. Many had burned feet from wading through burning oil. Others were cut by glass as they jumped through broken windows.

Several hours after the accident, the train still was blazing intermittently and smoldering. The locomotive was practically undamaged, but Southern Pacific officials said the engineer and fireman had not been located and may be among the dead and injured.

Buses were sent to Kingsburg to remove uninjured passengers to Fresno where a special Southern Pacific train will carry them on to San Francisco.

COUNCILMAN SUBMITS TO FUMIGATION FOLLOWING STINK-BOMBING OF ABODE

Councilman Roy Bell, of the Fourth Ward, submitted to a voluntary fumigation Tuesday.

His home at 1007 Victory Drive, S. W., was stink bombed in the early morning. The Councilman was in the way of the fumes. Thus, the fumigation.

And so, irked by his discomfort and inconvenience, Councilman Bell offered a $25 reward for the apprehension of those responsible for the bombing.

Bell is a salesman for a dairy at which the teamsters' union is on strike here. "I'm not an official and I have done nothing to merit or justify this indignity," Bell maintained.

3 Wounded As Bandits Battle Cops

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4.—(UP)—Police pounced on three bandits in the act of holding up a Miami Beach jewelry store Tuesday night and in the ensuing fusillade of bullets three bystanders were wounded.

One of the wouldbe robbers was captured and patrons of the store fled and clutched to their sides. The police got him away to safety. The other two bandits escaped, but officers said their captive had promised to lead them to their hideout.

The three victims of the gun battle were Mrs. Cecil Blum, Miami Beach, who was in critical condition with a stomach wound; David Goldsmith, shot in the abdomen; and Louis Shaffkin, seriously wounded in the shoulder.

3 Wounded As Bandits Battle Cops

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4.—(UP)—Police pounced on three bandits in the act of holding up a Miami Beach jewelry store Tuesday night and in the ensuing fusillade of bullets three bystanders were wounded.

One of the wouldbe robbers was captured and patrons of the store fled and clutched to their sides. The police got him away to safety. The other two bandits escaped, but officers said their captive had promised to lead them to their hideout.

The three victims of the gun battle were Mrs. Cecil Blum, Miami Beach, who was in critical condition with a stomach wound; David Goldsmith, shot in the abdomen; and Louis Shaffkin, seriously wounded in the shoulder.

Don't Gyp the Teachers

Unfortunately, when former Gov. Arnall made available funds for a 50 percent teacher salary increase, it was done without qualification or restriction.

The result, which might have been foreseen at the time, was that many local boards used the increased State aid as an excuse further to diminish their already inadequate participation in the program.

Thus it was that, rather than the full 50 percent increase which they had been led to expect, teachers in some Counties found their checks fattened in considerably lesser degree. Indeed, some are reported to have gotten no more than a 15 percent raise once local boards got through making what their spokesmen like charitably to refer to as "adjustments."

Clearly, in the contemplated legislation to perpetuate increased State aid, restrictions are indicated to forestall a continuation of the practice. Sen. Everett Millican, of the Fifty-second District, proposes to do this with an amendment withholding additional State money for teachers from systems that cut their participation in salary funds.

This is a logical suggestion, but it does not go far enough.

We are of the opinion that local participation should be required in amount equal to each locality's highest previous contribution. Or, better still, that a State-wide minimum be set up, with all Counties forced to meet it.

If the people of Georgia are going to be saddled with millions of dollars in new taxes levied in the name of more adequate pay for teachers, we want to make sure that it is the teachers who get it... all of it.

Why Not a Joint Command?

For some time there has been a growing public demand for consolidation of city and county services, eliminating the extravagances of duplicated effort and providing an integrated approach to government functions.

Herbert Jenkins, a veteran of 15 years on the Atlanta police force, last month was chosen to head the county department. This week, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Chief M. A. Hornsby, he was recalled by the city to head the municipal police. Clearly, then, Chief Jenkins is acceptable to both city and county authorities.

It seems to us that Mr. Jenkins might very well be allowed to serve as chief of the two departments in another step more closely to co-ordinate law enforcement efforts in the metropolitan area. He is a capable man, well qualified to do the job. Our city and county governments like to talk of closer co-operation. This is a splendid opportunity for them to practice it.

To Survey Our Mineral Resources

To the layman who is continually confused by conflicting reports on the metal resources of the country, the suggestion that the Government conduct a survey to determine the exact reserves available gives promise of relief. Since the war ended one authority after another has voiced opinion on potential metal reserves of the United States. Seldom have these estimates coincided. Usually they have been utterly contradictory.

Interior Secretary J. A. Krug would like to survey the mineral possibilities of the nation. He said in his annual report to the President such a study would require 20 years and might cost a billion dollars. That would be at a rate of $50,000,000 a year, which in these days of astronomical spending is not too much. Sec. Krug's survey would include, of course, an estimate of available atom bomb materials.

The Secretary sides with those authorities who insist that the war drained our metal resources to a dangerous level. He also contends that present available figures on reserves are "meaningless." Along with millions of other Americans he would like to end once and for all the conflicting "estimates" which are at best based on insufficient facts. Only from an impartial survey conducted by the Government can the complete facts be obtained and a report drawn which would point the way toward conservation of the country's vital mineral resources.

A Prescription for Habit-Forming Drugs

We congratulate the Georgia State Pharmaceutical Association upon its announced intention of recommending that the forthcoming General Assembly add to the list of drugs available on prescription only.

Barbiturates, benzadrine and thyroid anti-fat compounds are among the products which would be placed under the Dangerous Drug Act if the Legislature follows, as certainly it should, the recommendations of the Pharmaceutical Association.

New drugs are constantly being developed in this scientific age. Many are specifics for which a need has long existed. But many are also habit-forming and dangerous if taken to excess or over long periods of time. By all means let the Legislature enlarge the provisions of the Dangerous Drug Act so as to include any which can ruin the lives of those too weak to resist them.

Linder's Type of Thinking

Editor Constitution: Under the caption, "Why a White Primary," Tom Linder has given an excellent illustration of crooked thinking. Seemingly, without knowing it, he has argued on both sides of the question. The result is a hodge-podge of statements utterly incompatible. He says, for example, that "the question of a White Primary goes much deeper and is broader than the question of white and black. It is most unfortunate and regrettable that it has been given a white and black implication." All of which is certainly true.

Linder then goes on with a most dogmatic discussion of the supposedly innate capacities of the various peoples for participation in our democratic form of government—a discussion entirely out of harmony with the conclusions of present-day psychology, anthropology, and the other sciences bearing on the question.

The American Psychological Association, for example, in a recent resolution, declared: "In the experiments which psychologists have made upon different people, no characteristic inherent psychological differences, which fundamentally distinguish so-called races, have been disclosed. . . . Psychologists look elsewhere for the explanation of current racial hatred and persecution. . . . Racial and national attitudes are psychologically complex and cannot be understood except in terms of their economic, political and historical backgrounds. Psychologists find no basis for the explanation of such attitudes in terms of innate differences between racial and national groups."

These are not "damnyanke" judgments expressed for some sectional purpose, but the deliberate conclusions of mental and social scientists. The outstanding psychologists, sociologists and anthropologists of the universities of the South do not question the conclusions of their fellow scientists. Yet Tom Linder, Georgia's Commissioner of Agriculture, declares that "different races are different in their mental processes to just as great an extent as they are different in color and different in features."

What Tom Linder was saying about the need to preserve democracy was irrelevant to his position in the matter, for the White Primary Bill in the Georgia Legislature is intended by the politicians to destroy democracy even for the white citizens of the State.

'Has Linder Forgotten?'

Editor Constitution: Tom Linder is right when he says the "question of a White Primary goes much deeper and is broader than the question of white and black." Apparently, he hopes to eventually exclude all races except the pure(?) white race. This is the same type of thinking that led Germany to her present state. Has he forgotten what happened to the ring leaders of that same type of thinking?

Of course, no educational test will be acceptable to the Talmadge followers. Too many of their supporters wouldn't be able to pass any test.

Democracy may not work for all countries. For the United States—that is what we want. That kind of government gives ALL OF ITS CITIZENS the right to vote.

JENNY LIND PETTYS.

Answer to Linder

Editor Constitution: I have just read Mr. Tom Linder's letter for the tenth time and I am sure that I get his meaning. Indeed, it seems to have been taken, verbatim, from the Volkish Beobachter, in the days of Goebbels' greatest "glory."

Yes, "read this letter by the man who would destroy democracy in the name of democracy. And I tell you that I have long ago grown weary of people who base their religion or political philosophy on one verse from the Bible or one paragraph from a "doctored-up" history book. And I can tell him that America was built by many peoples of many races and faiths. Politicians to the contrary, this is not a Caucasian nation. The "unfit" people of whom he speaks, have helped to push the frontier from sea to sea. They have helped to make this country OUR COUNTRY—the world's leader in science and technology. These "unfit" people still strive to make her greater in spite of persons who would hold her down or set her back 100 years for the sake of "Heritage and Tradition."

Need I remind him that the nearest thing to real democracy was in that little band that followed that young Jew from Nazareth? No, friend Editor, Mr. Linder does not really believe in what he said. He said that for political expediency. And he does not mean what he said about bloc voting. For the South has bloc voted for 70 years. Can he deny that? May God have mercy on men like him when the people wake up and find out what they actually mean when they speak of a "White Primary."

I know that I write this at my peril.

Contented—Other Than Cows

BRADENTON, Fla.—Man rarely knows what to do with his life. He may spend it all in back-breaking toil with no leisure beyond the two weeks' vacation. Or he may, possessed of much money, go bumbling like a moth about the flame from resort to resort and from night spot to night spot, having cocktails and playing gin rummy and getting little satisfaction out of either.

Or he may become a trailer gypsy.

Pure contentment popularly is reserved for cows whose milk is therefore contented and therefore good for you.

But, now, I find myself wondering.

I would not call the modern trailer the counterpart of the covered wagon of pioneer days. It possesses running water, soft beds, oil stoves of the one and two-eyed variety or the electric kind that may be plugged in at any convenient trailer park. Electric lights and soft-shaded lamps also are a part of their equipment, and many, even, have a sanitary, odorless facility such as the airliners possess. So, I would not compare them with the covered wagon less the ghosts of some of those who crossed the continent in them properly flock about me like unseen flocks of mosquitoes and plague me even worse.

Wanderer Nevertheless, they are the modern version of that historic vehicle of the old days and, like them, they serve to carry the discontented and the restless wanderers across the continent. True, they are subject to no dangers save from bad eating places and traffic hazards. No Indians attack them. They stake no claims, but go where they listeth, a growing clan of nomads. Still others have erected awnings and put out potted plants. Many possess comfortable, stuffed porch furniture and, after lunch, they are filled with napping persons, their scores purring gently in the warm air.

Near Bradenton, indeed on the very hem of its municipal garment, there is a trailer camp to which I was taken on a visit. There were in it, on this day of the visit, 1,027 trailers with an average human content of two and one-half persons per trailer. This gave to this "camp" a population of more than 2,500 persons, making it a sizable town.

They were close packed, only a few steps separating them from their neighbors. Since the rent is but $2 per week, for a yearly total of $104 (it is less in other camps offering less), and since the air of Bradenton is salubrious and the people friendly, there have been there for years. They have built little open-air living rooms adjoining one side of their trailer. Vines grow and flowers bloom. Still others have erected awnings and put out potted plants. Many possess comfortable, stuffed porch furniture and, after lunch, they are filled with napping persons, their scores purring gently in the warm air.

Many have put up signs such as "Ed and Milly, Ypsilanti, Michigan" . . . "George, Mary and Sue, Cedar Falls, Iowa" . . . "Bob, Flora and Bill, Perry, Illinois."

Sitting They toil not, neither do they spin. They sit and visit. They take naps. They gather in great force to see the shuffleboard games which any good camp provides. The ring and clang of their horseshoe pitching games sounds from morning until well after the sable night has fallen.

Their age, I estimate, averages about 58 or thereabouts. They have had those regions where the Winters are long and they have come where it always is Summer and rare is the day when a man may not feel the sun warm on his back, like the caress of an old friend. They may move from month to month, or finding a few Eds and Joes and Bettys and Marys, stay on for a year or more, putting down a few small roots in the form of furniture for the open air or a few vines or a few vines and ferns.

This one camp has, as I said, its capacity of 1,027. It turns them away every day. They pull up, inquire, and go on, their trailers bobbing along behind, showing lace curtains and gay prints on the walls.

Roots There are, in the camps in and about Bradenton, at least 3,500 such trailers. Near-by Sarasota has as many. Every city has them and the roads seem always to have in sight at least one or more, coming and going. California and the Western States with warm Winters know them. There must be a good 200,000 of them scattered between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., during which hours the United States means that an approximate half millions persons have no real home, have earned enough to live without working, and, in the later years of their lives, are not the traditional American with roots, but rather gypsies of a vast and growing brotherhood which worships the sun, plays shuffleboard and horseshoes, goes to bed early, and has found a contentment which makes contented cows seem restless radicals.

My heart warms to them, and I rejoice with them that they can live without toil, but somehow I felt no yearning to go buy a trailer and park it with them and hurry down to the shuffleboard courts. You have to be to the manor born, and the manor of the contented ones is the trailer, retelling now at about $225.

Merchants Opposed Street Parking Ban

Apparently many of our retail merchants are still opposed to prohibition of automobile parking on the inner-city streets. L. L. Austin, Secretary of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, sends a letter, commenting on a column of discussion on the proposed parking ban, in which he sets forth arguments against the ban, as seen by his association.

Mr. Austin's chief point seems to be that it is necessary for trucks to make front-door deliveries during the daytime to many of the smaller stores. Stores, he says, which lack side or rear-alley entrances accessible for such deliveries. Restricting such deliveries to night time would, he says, be impractical and excessively costly.

Furthermore, he states there is no serious traffic congestion on Atlanta streets between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., during which hours one-hour parking is now permitted. During the rush hours, when there is traffic congestion—7 to 9 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m., parking is already forbidden on most downtown streets, he points out.

Mr. Austin's is not the only letter received dealing with the traffic problem. J. L. Kilpatrick, for instance, who is in the truck transportation business. He suggests that better synchronization of the traffic lights and a shortening of the time between light changes would speed traffic. "Keep the wheels turning and they'll cover more ground," is his contention. He would cut the duration of the red light signal to one-third and believes this would speed up the movement of traffic generally.

Mr. Kilpatrick may have something. Anyway, I'm passing his suggestion on to our traffic control authorities for whatever it is, or is not, worth.

Merchants' Views

Reverting to Mr. Austin's letter, here is what he writes: "We have read with interest your column this morning, headed 'Downtown Parking Ban As Experiment.' In this article you refer to the position of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association is simply this:

"The real traffic congestion occurs between the hours of 7:00 a. m. and 9:00 a. m., and 4:00 p. m. and 6:00 p. m., at which time parking is banned on most of the downtown streets. The Association goes along with that, because it is necessary to get traffic in and out of town during the rush hours. But between the hours of 9:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m., at which time there is one-hour parking on the downtown streets, there is no serious traffic congestion, except when there is a parade, a football game, or something of that sort. Please don't take our word for this. Simply get out on the streets between those hours and see for yourself. So long as there isn't serious congestion between those hours, we just don't see why people should not be allowed to park.

"You emphasize the fact that if one car is parked in a block it is as bad as a block full. In that you are correct. But that would mean banning all loading and unloading on the streets in the inner fire limits between the hours of 7:00 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Atlanta has few alleys for loading and unloading purposes, and to ban all loading and unloading during the day would just about stop business. If you had attended the hearing at the Police Committee last Thursday evening, and had heard numerous representatives of firms who make deliveries to stores, hotels, restaurants, etc., point out that they rely on the delivery of goods during the day, you would have seen that the ban would be prohibitive, in addition to being impractical.

"You seem to be very sure that people use their cars very little for shopping purposes. An official of the Police Department stated last Thursday evening that a count of 30,000 cars parked on streets and in parking lots in the downtown area showed that 5,000 of them were used by shoppers, 11,000 for business purposes, a number of them by people who work downtown, etc. He also said that there is a turnover of nine cars per day for each space in which cars park on the streets.

"The time may come when traffic will become so congested that it will be necessary to ban downtown parking during business hours. But so long as there isn't serious congestion between the hours of 9:00 and 4:00, we can't understand why anybody would advocate sweeping all cars and trucks off of the streets."

Unhappy Love On Broadway

This is a Broadway love story. If you like happy endings, maybe you ought to turn to the stock market page.

Rudolf Richter had a personality like an almond bar—sweet but nutty. He was one of our top scenic designers. Whenever the script called for a stage full of gingerbread and spangles, Rudy got the job. After a producer engaged him, he would then engage somebody else to follow Rudy and see he didn't fall down a manhole.

This talented zany lived on a spec. cloud of his own, somewhere between Graustark and the Land of Oz. The wise guys around Shubert Alley used to say that when Rudy walked past a bakery, the fruitcakes in the window would turn to each other and say, "That's the fellow I was telling you about."

RUDY WORKED for me, on and off, for half a dozen years. There must have been a thousand girls around the various shows he designed. Richter never saw them. As far as he was concerned, a girl was something that got in the way of his scenery.

Then, one day, Rudy fell in love with the prettiest girl in a new show he had designed for me. No one thought he had a chance with this doll. Jane Morgan might have inspired the invention of technicolor. She had hair the color of daisies-centers, and eyes as green as a new dollar bill. From the back of the assistant electrician, everybody had given her the wolfeye.

To everybody's amazement, Jane paid plenty of attention to Rudy. The reason was simple. He asked her to marry him.

A WEEK after Rudy proposed, Jane married him. The day after the wedding, he told me they had rented the whole floor of a brownstone house in the East 30's. He invited me to drop around as soon as they got settled.

A month later, I did. I was anxious to see how he had decorated his apartment. I expected something out of the Arabian Nights. Figuring he'd get a kick out of it, I took Eleanor along.

Rudy and Jane were at the door to meet us. The apartment consisted of six spacious, well-lighted rooms. I looked around, and so did Eleanor. Then we looked at each other.

There were no drapes, no carpets, no pictures. There was a telephone on the floor of the living room—and nothing else. The master bedroom had a bed—nothing else. In what would ordinarily be the dining room, Rudy had set up a plain deal table for his crayons and paint pots.

EXCEPT for the furniture I have mentioned, the apartment was bare as a bowling alley. If they ate at home, it must have been off the window sill.

I could see Jane was terribly embarrassed in front of Eleanor. We made a little small talk and left as quickly as we could. When we got out on the street, Eleanor said, "I don't get it." "I think I do," I said. "It has nothing to do with money—he makes plenty. Rudy is a special sort of fellow. He lives in the batty world that's under his hat. We see all place as an empty apartment. With that girl in there, Rudy probably sees it as Solomon's palace, Marie Antoinette's boudoir, and the Taj Mahal."

"I DON'T care what he sees," said the Missus. "I'm betting the marriage won't last."

How right she was!

A couple of weeks later, Rudy came to see me.

"How's Jane?" I asked. "Wish I knew," said the designer. "She walked out on me last week. Can't figure it. We were so happy. And then, bang!—she runs off with another guy."

"Sorry to hear it," I said. "Who'd she go off with?"

"I don't know," said Rudy. "Some dope she met. I think he's in the furniture business."

At Least One Railroad To Be Run on Time

One of the nation's leading railroads is extending credit privileges to potential customers. If the entire industry follows suit, the pay-as-you-go policy will be retained only by bus lines and the Department of Internal Revenue.

Our grandfathers, who went West in covered wagons, would be surprised to know the trip can now be made on a charge account. The iron horse may stage a comeback now that three most popular modes of travel will be plane, car and cuff.

One knew, of course, that the world has come increasingly to be run on credit. But who ever thought to see the Chesapeake & Ohio advertising: "Just Bring an Honest Face?"

I guess it knows what it's doing. . . . But the C&O will look pretty silly, trying to repossess a one-way ticket from Norfolk to Cincinnati.

Incidentally, will they have to enlarge the brotherhoods to take in bill collectors?

For Better Bands At Georgia and Tech

Some members of the Georgia Legislature think something ought to be done about the bands at Tech and Georgia. The two State schools have great football teams. They get them with the aid of scholarships. The two schools do not have great bands. They do not offer scholarships for bandmen. Thinking that the musical program is a vital part of the football game, Rep. Sam Welsh has asked the House and Senate to name a joint committee to study band situations at the two schools, and see what encouragement can be offered to bandmen.

This agitation started several days ago when the Legislature was entertained at a dinner by Fulton and DeKalb solons and the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. Taking a prominent part on the entertainment program were three trumpet players and three drummers from Georgia Tech. They got a big hand. They also used the occasion to let the General Assembly know that whatever they did in music they did at their own initiative, because Tech offers no inducements to get men to play in the band. This started some of the solons thinking. Lovers such week practicing a musical instrument without receiving any college credit or financial aid.

Trombonist Speaks A gentleman who played the trombone for the University of Georgia band and who has been at Tech so many years ago deplored the pitiful appearance of the Georgia and Tech bands. He did not think their playing stacks up with other school bands which have visited Georgia. He did not blame either the bandmasters or the student bandmen for this. He praised them for doing the best they could with what they have. But, he said, the bands at Tech and Georgia are not in keeping with the outstanding football teams or with the great reputations of the two schools. The gentleman speaking this piece was Rep. Elliot Hagan, of Screven County. He said the bands are treated as stepchildren, instead of being boosted as a great advertisement to the schools.

From his own student days, Hagan recalls a humiliating experience of the Georgia band. Seats supposedly reserved for the band were sold out from under the bandmen at Columbus. Athletic Association officials made no forceful protest, and the band was forced to stand on the sidelines of the football field.

Begging Funds From my own days as a member of the University of Georgia band, I recall helping the student bandmen beg for money to accompany their football team to Louisiana for an LSU game. We passed a blanket needed to take the band and to baton Rouge. We got about half the necessary amount. No organization matched our funds. Instead, the Athletic Association took the band's collection and used it to buy band music and instruments, thereby saving the Association this expenditure.

Rep. Hagan believes the only way to have a good band is to provide good uniforms and an inducement to the students to come down and spend their time practicing and entertaining football crowds.

Legislature Off-key Another significant thing happened at that Legislative dinner, now that the music has been mentioned. Lovers of fine music should have been able to predict with a great deal of certainty the continued division of the General Assembly after watching the audience that night. The performers who got the best hand were a light opera singer and a hillbilly team—who performed separately, of course. Speaking from the experiences of a person who used to perform on those delicate instruments known as the trap drums, I would predict there is no hope for unity among a Legislature which divides its tastes between the extremes of a rendition of "The Italian Street Song" and "She'll Be Coming 'Round the Mountain."

ALTAR STAIRS By John Marvin Rast

John did no miracle, but all things that John spoke of this man were true—John 10:41.

Not every one can work miracles. John the Baptist could not, or did not. Yet he did that which was just as valuable. He witnessed to the miraculous power of the Christ. The favorite verse of the late Bishop King of England was, "John did no miracle, but all things that John spoke of this man were true." It might well be the goal of each of us thus to attest by thought, word and deed the majesty of the Master. Assuredly it is a goal within reach of each. The Kingdom lags or leaps forward according to the suaveness of our claims for Christ, the demonstration of His redeeming power in our lives.

Republicans Groping Over Budget, Taxes

WASHINGTON—Republicans are groping about in a fog of confusion and disillusion over two major problems, budget and taxes, with friction among leaders and mild revolts from rank and file and continually conflicting statements about party policy and intention.

This is understandable and no cause for alarm. It takes some time to readjust from the campaign blueprint, glibly parroted from so many stumps, to the reality. Or, to be specific, from easy promises, such as a flat 20 percent personal income tax cut and the slashing of a million or two employees from the Government payroll—the figure depending upon how good the speaker felt that particular day—to practical realization.

PARTY LEADERS have run up hard against two realities: One is politics and the other the changes that have come over our economy since the GOP was last in power. The two are involved. A cut-back will show three things, among others, that have happened which enter into calculations as Republicans start their job:

1. People generally have come to expect more of their Government because they have got more from it. This not only includes the masses in the lower-income groups but some further up the scale, such as businessmen and farmers, who enjoy a number of Government services.
2. To pay for these, the country has become adjusted—even though many don't like it—to the use of the income tax to reach up into the higher brackets, personal and corporate, and get the money to spread in services of various sorts.
3. The depression which, among other things, taught us that there's got to be a continual reservoir of purchasing power among the great bulk of our people to buy the goods they produce.

WHAT the Republican Party needs most today, and some of its leaders are coming to see it, is a philosophy. That is, they must first decide just what kind of Government they intend to give the people, how much of what they have had.

The role of critics was simple for the last 14 years in opposing Government spending and new Government functions. But now the critics see how intricately these functions have become woven into the life of the people of the country. They have come to see just how wide was the scope of various New Deal reforms that gave the mill worker and the farmer better incomes, gave him more of the other aids of modern civilization, such as cheaper electricity through great public power projects; new and more fertile land through development of our rivers and irrigation; nice homes where once there were slums, and so on.

We expanded internally as a nation. It cost money—payable money. But we got dividends in a richer and better country.

THERE are some few in Congress, and some outside, who

Singing About National Debt

For the past 10 years or so, mournful back-fence wails have been issuing from Republican "viewers with alarm" about the size of the national debt. Now that a Republican Congress has taken over, one has a right to expect that immediate steps shall be forthcoming to reduce this debt substantially. Recently, Sen. George A. Wilson, Republican of Iowa, proposed an annual payment on it equal to one-tenth of estimated Government receipts.

This proposal, if adopted, would mean that whenever Congress estimated that appropriations would reach a point where a tenth of the receipts could not be applied on the debt, the Congress would be required to levy additional taxes to make up, within two years, the difference.

SEN. WILSON is a relative newcomer to the Senate and I would not want to disillusion him too roughly as to the prospects of a Republican Congress adopting his plan. However, I am sure that he will be interested in previous performances by Republican Administrations. Who was it said, "I have no way of judging the future but by the past?"

At the end of World War I the highest point of indebtedness reached by the Wilson administration was $26,500,000,000. That was in August of 1919. Between that date and June of 1921 this debt had been reduced by slightly over $2,500,000,000, so that when the Harding administration took office, the national debt was just short of $24,000,000,000. There followed 12 peace-time years under Republican administration.

However, the day that President Roosevelt replaced President Hoover, the amount of the national debt was $22,500,000,000. At no time during the prosperous Republican tenure was the debt reduced by a total of more than $8,000,000,000 and the subsequent increased Federal expenditures necessitated by the depression wiped almost all of this gain, with the net result that over a period of 12 long years, three Republican administrations had succeeded in reducing the national debt by less than $15,000,000,000.

On a comparative basis, the Republicans in 12 years reduced a national debt by only three-fifths as much as Wilson had reduced it in two years.

IN SHORT, the Republican Party brought down the national debt by less than six percent in 12 years. To state it differently, the Republican Party paid on the average for the whole period not quite one half of one percent of the national debt during each year of its administration.

Now I, for one, applaud Sen. Wilson's proposal. I concur in his opinion that steps should be taken forthwith in the direction of reducing the national debt. I would caution him that one reason for the Republican failure to reduce the national debt was its political anxiety to reduce the income tax. In 1921 the net income tax reduced this tax by $1,500,000,000. Again, in 1924, the income tax was reduced, in order "to reach a fair peacetime rate."

In 1926, another tax reducing law was passed. In 1928, still another reduction went into effect because "We don't need the money" and, finally, on Dec. 4, 1929, in the face of tumbling prices, panic and impending ruin, the Republican administration passed still another law reducing income taxes.

If the tax rates levied in the Revenue Law of 1918, and those rates were not excessive, had remained on the statute books unaltered for nine years—until 1927, EVERY DOLLAR of the national debt would have been repaid. During the five-year period from 1924 to 1929 the net incomes of individuals and corporations increased, and income tax revenues would naturally have increased proportionately. The result was that, when the stock market took its precipitous plunge in 1929, we found ourselves still saddled with a large national debt that might well have been wiped out.

IF WE HAD done this, we would have gone into the period of the depression and faced the Second World War with our national finances in an infinitely stronger position than they actually were because of the burdensome debt that the country continued to stagger along under during the twelve years of Republican rule. It might be profitable to speculate whether the depression would have hit us so hard or would have lasted so long if our National Treasury had been using black ink, instead of red, in the years prior to 1930.

Now, with the new Republican Congress in office, a whole chorus of Republican Senators sing a song of reducing income taxes, "20 percent across the board," while Sen. Wilson does a solo part about cutting down the national debt. I wonder whether the chorus or the solo will prevail.

Spring and Nostalgia Bring End to Idyll

MIAMI—It used to be fine in the evening in that abandoned house which somehow became an inn for half the roving brotherhood in the Coral Gables sections. We'd sit around on the floor, broiling steaks at the fireplace and singing songs and telling tall tales of places we had been and things we'd seen. Though, to tell the truth, none of us had been anywhere, or seen much, except the highways from our homes to where we were.

Some of us worked at hotels then, the big hotels that cost $75 a day, for some of them were still open, even in 1930. We worked as "pearl divers," cleaning the plates and racking them in the dishwasher. And sometimes a sated guest would send back a lamb chop still untouched, with the paper pants still on it, or a breast of guinea, or a pheasant. And all of these delicacies somehow found their way to the vacant house beside the road.

Gayety There was a girl named Marvelyn who used to come, because she liked the talk and the singing, bringing cigarettes and cheese and a bottle of wine from her father's delicatessen. And after dinner we'd all climb on the motorcycles, with Marvelyn in an evening gown riding tandem with somebody, to go out to the Bel Air fronton and slip in through the big French windows and watch the play. Though generally Lou Magnolia, the old light referee who ran the place and a great friend of Al Capone, would send some of his gorillas to throw us out.

And by day, when there was no work, there was the little abandoned beach where the storm had wrecked the palm-thatched bath-houses. And in the evening, for the adventure and pure sport of it, the high fence to climb to the grapefruit grove. So time went on in a sort of golden haze and nobody bothered us and we bothered nobody, except perhaps the man who owned grapefruit. And I suppose we might have stayed on for years, except Spring has a habit of coming, bringing with it a restlessness.

Exodus So when the bright flowers began to take on a more vivid brightness, and the warm winds bore a greater warmth, which is the way Spring comes to Miami, the spell began to break. Clancy got out his saddlebags and began to go over his gear, talking of New Orleans and the road to the West. Bill began to tinker with the innards of the old Henderson, getting it ready for the long trek back to Canada, and Perry started writing letters home to Cleveland—a bad sign. Then one morning the little Texas kid who always wore a vest was gone, and then the boy from Minneapolis, and the kid from Spokane.

So we decided to have one last farewell party before we all had scattered. And that night, coming home, Jack ran the motorcycle off a bottleneck in the road with me on the tandem. When I sat up, with the blood running down from the little cut on my head, he was sitting there looking at his elbow where the broken bone stuck through the skin and his face in the moonlight was a turtle-soup green.

Dumped So I left him in the hospital, in the "motorcycle ward," where they had a dozen such as he, and came on home alone. But the machine was out of line, and it threw me on a dewy wooden bridge on the Tamiami Trail, and it skidded from under me on the rain-slick wooden blocks in Ybor City, the Spanish town at Tampa. And, finally, when the back tire blew and tossed me into a ditch just outside the city of Perry, Ga., about midnight one night, I kicked it over to the side of the road and, finding a sawdust pile, burrowed in and went to sleep.

So a day or so later I rolled in home the way I had left Athens so long before—on the back of a truck and with $10 to my name. And I stopped uptown to wash up a little and trim the little moustache which I had for weeks been carefully growing. And my father was sitting there, reading his paper, as I walked in the house.

All he said, after he had looked at me for a minute, was: "Go shave that thing off."

Reunion So I went back and shaved it off and came back to where he sat, and he stood up and put his arm around my shoulders and looked at me hard, and I thought he was going to cry.

"Well, son," he said, "did you have a pretty hard time?"

"No, sir," I said, "not hard at all. In fact, I think it did me a lot of good."

And looking back on it now, I believe it did. For when I went back to school that fall I still was broke. But I'd learned that anything you want bad enough you can get, no matter how hard the times. So with the help of the Athens Banner-Herald, which needed a reporter then, and a shoe store or two that needed help on Saturdays, plus some from home and a little more from here and there, plus a loan or two when things got really tough, the next two years were just a breeze.

And I may be wrong, but I think when my son gets about 18, if his mama will let me (which she won't), I am going to give him $10 and tell him to hit the road.

A Few Remarks for the Record

A SPLIT SECOND AFTER the appointment as Secretary of State, Gen. Marshall is mentioned for the presidency, which shows how much speedier than the atom is the chain reaction of the political dopest.

IT APPEARS there is the lost generation of Republicans: those who were too young for office in the years before FDR and are now along in life.

A WISCONSIN solon believes that, with a little jazzing up, the Congressional Record could be readily sold on newsstands. We'll be seeing you, Senator, in the funny papers.

ON SECOND thought some in Congress feel it unseemly, this haste to pay off the national debt, as long as we owe it to ourselves. Have we been dunning us?

UNTIL WE HEAR his side of the case, comment is withheld on a $125,000 shortage in the accounts of the House sergeant at arms. He could have thought it was lend-lease.

GALLUP POLL

Middle of Road Policy Favored

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—In contrast to the political ferment in some of the other nations of the world, the mood in the United States remains dominantly middle-of-the-road.

A majority of voters throughout the country say they want to see President Truman follow a policy, not to the right nor to the left, but down the middle of the road.

Moreover, the largest single bloc of voters are inclined to believe that President Truman is carrying out their wishes in this respect. This may contain part of the answer to President Truman's remarkable comeback in public esteem. His personal rating with voters has jumped 16 percentage points since last October.

THE PRESENT MOOD of the country was disclosed in the most recent check by the Institute on a question asked periodically:

"Which of these three policies would you like to have President Truman follow?"

1. Go more to the LEFT by following more of the views of labor and other liberal groups.
2. More to the RIGHT by following more of the views of business and conservative groups.
3. Follow a policy halfway between the two.

The results of the poll:

Should go more to left . . . 14%
Should go more to right . . . 20%
Should keep middle-of-the-road . . . 66%
No opinion . . . 10%

THERE HAS BEEN a marked shift in thinking about what course voters believe the President is now following.

This fact is shown in the following table in reply to a second question asked in the poll:

"Which of these three policies do you think President Truman is now following?"

The replies:	Today	Last Year
Think policies have been to left . . .	19%	44%
Think policies have been to right . . .	22	13
Think policies have been middle-of-the-road . . .	37	27
No opinion . . .	22	16

MAJORITIES in both parties want to see Mr. Truman follow a middle-of-the-road policy, and the largest bloc in each group also think he is doing so. This is shown as follows:

	Policy Being Followed	Policy Voters Want
DEMOCRATS
To left . . .	15%	18%
To right . . .	25	12
Middle-of-the-road . . .	37	60
No opinion . . .	23	10
REPUBLICANS
To left . . .	23%	9%
To right . . .	21	29
Middle-of-the-road . . .	36	53
No opinion . . .	20	9

Sometimes it seems most of us think too much of what we eat and drink. The housewife struggles with her plans to purchase food in bags or cans.

The papers and the magazines employ the culinary deans Who write of stews, en casseroles, of salads from the salad bowl, And how a family of ten can feed itself from one small hen.

Along the highway's beaten track most every joint's an eating shack With signs inviting, "Stop in Here, Hamburgers, Wieners, Ale and Beer."

Our Grecian friends who used to throw the discus, in the long ago, Are now engaged in slinging hash and raking in the ready cash.

The best-attended church event is one with invitations sent Which tell the members there will be a spot of sandwiches and tea, They may not go to be reborn by sermons on the Sabbath morn But they'll be there at dark or dawn when someone hollers, "Soup is on!"

Encouraged by our appetites, the chemists labor through the nights Discovering new substitutes for meat, potatoes, breads and fruits, And ever-growing is the list of new-born foods we can't resist. And now they are about to bilk the cows and give us patent milk, And we will swallow it of course, yet still prefer the udder source.

Disk Plow Best For Kudzu Crowns

With the advent of February, inquiries begin to arrive as to the best way to dig kudzu crowns. From now until about April 1 is the planting season and a great many farmers are getting ready to gather crowns. We consulted Mr. R. Y. (Kudzu) Bailey, Regional Agronomist of the Soil Conservation Service, who has probably had as much experience with kudzu as any living person. Below you will find exact directions for digging kudzu crowns.

"The best method of digging kudzu crowns that I have seen tried is to plow with a single-disk plow. Tractor plows having three disks may be adjusted to this job by removing 2 disks and then moving the remaining disk sufficiently to balance the plow and make it operate satisfactorily. If a disk plow is set to cut 8 or 10 inches, it turns the crowns out in very nice condition.

"WHERE a tractor plow is not available, crowns may be dug with a mule-drawn turn plow. If a walking plow is used, it should be set to go as deeply as possible. A better job of digging crowns is done if a sharp point is put on the turn plow. Plowing crowns out with a walking plow is a rather hard way of getting them, but it can be done provided you have a good team of mules and a plow that is in good condition."

Dodd Wowed 'Em At Columbus Party

Mr. Robert Lee Dodd has developed into one of the better speakers on the banquet circuit and reached a new high at the Quarterback Club meeting in Columbus Monday night.

Wally Butts, the Georgia coach, was not present, having found it necessary to rush back to Athens in the interest of a halfback, or somebody. He therefore left the door wide open for the witty Georgia Tech mentor.

Bobby opened his remarks by saying: "If I have to fill Wally Butts' speaking engagements, I'm going to say just what I please about him."

Then he went on from there. "Confidentially," he said, "Butts told me the other day that he is arranging a money schedule for next season. Of course, he said, he doesn't need the money and... But right there I interrupted him. The heck you don't, I said, with you and Trippi draining the kitty over there for the past two years, gentlemen, Butts and Trippi would ruin the national treasury."

Dodd told of meeting a group of West Coast newspapermen upon arrival at Houston for his Oil Bowl game with St. Mary's.

"They told me that Trippi wasn't in the same class with Wedemeyer. I laughed it off but then got to worrying about it. Suppose he was better than Trippi? So I got my boys out and we worked like the devil for the game."

"After it was over, I was feeling pretty good about the score and the way we stopped Wedemeyer."

"Going out the gate, I met those same Coast writers. Well, I said, what do you fellows think of Wedemeyer now?"

"Oh, he just had a bad day," they said, "He's still better than Trippi."

"That was enough for me. The heck he is, I said, Trippi has never had a bad day."

Dodd expressed his gratitude to the Georgia alumni helping keep him at Tech.

"When Baylor offered me that job," he said, "my Tech friends and a whole bunch of you Georgia people got together and combined efforts to keep me in Atlanta. I appreciate it but I won't promise you this feeling is going to continue because one of these days we're going to up and beat hell out of you."

The Quarterbacks got a big kick out of that one. It was their third annual party and a successful one. The speeches weren't long and were entertaining. The feature of the show was the bowl pictures.

Other clubs could take note.

Sports Shorts: Speaking of talks, Charlie Trippi made one of the best at the Atlanta Touchdown Club meeting after receiving the most valuable player trophy. "I guess it's a good thing I'm getting such a large salary to play pro football," he said, "because from the looks of Coach Butts' schedule next season, he and I both are going to have to live off it."

The fire which destroyed the broom factory near Ponce de Leon Park almost burned the colored bleachers and right field signboards before it was brought under control.

Georgia Tech and Georgia are two of the few teams to score as many as 40 points in Kentucky's night basketball team this year. Which is like saying, "My horse didn't win, but he finished the race."

West Point does pretty well recruiting cadets who happen to be pretty good football players also. Somebody is about to talk one of the best prep backs in Columbus into being educated on the Hudson.

Ralph Hamilton, Sports Arena's high-scoring forward last season, is second in the Big Nine scoring race, averaging 16.4 points per game. The leader is 8 of a point ahead of him. Ralph is playing with Indiana.

Buddy Atkinson, of the Louisville Times, suggests somebody ought to scribble on MacPhail's wall: "Trippi was here."

A brief notice in Monday's papers relating the death of a Lloyd A. Gearhart in a Pennsylvania train wreck caused considerable alarm among Atlanta baseball fans, who thought it might be last year's Cracker center fielder. It wasn't. The dead man was an engineer on the train and lived at Erie, Pa. The Cracker's Gearhart, sold to the New York Giants in midseason, is a native of Lorraine Ohio. He has been in Atlanta until last weekend playing basketball and is now safe at his Ohio home.

Crisler Admits Visit To Talk Over Cal Job

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 4.—(AP)—H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, University of Michigan Athletic Director and football coach, said today that he came to talk of many things—with the vacant California football coaching job just one of them.

A conference between President Robert Gordon Sproul and the Michigan coach was scheduled for today.

"Is the primary purpose of your visit to negotiate for the California coaching job?" Crisler was asked by a reporter.

"I wouldn't say that," the gray-haired, veteran coach replied.

"Detroit is trying to get the 1952 Olympics, and I wanted to talk to Brutus Hamilton, (track coach) about that. California and Michigan have a dual track meet in April, and as Michigan Athletic Manager I want to discuss the order of events."

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Gene Roberts, the University of Chattanooga's Little All-America ball carrier, has signed a 1947 contract to play for the New York Giants of the National Football League, club officials said today.

Roberts, a native of Kansas City, Kan., scored 117 points in 10 games last year, the second highest total in the country.

Bird In Hand Worth Two In Bush, Dog Handler Finds

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—There are tricks in every trade and one that comes up for discussion when bird dog people gather concerns the canny tactics of a once-famous handler now dead.

This handler—and followers of field trials swear it is true—would carry a trapped quail in his pocket. He wore extra-large trousers legs and, in reaching particularly heavy cover, he would call his dog on point, dismount from his horse and walk into the briars or sedge or along a creek bank.

The handler would have his dog cocked up on point and then, through a hole in his pocket, drop the bird down his pantsleg. When the bird would fly up he'd shoot his gun and carry through on what appeared to be a perfect find and outstanding dog work on a single.

Judges never caught the handler in the act. Often, when bird work was limited, the handler would get a first. If not a first, the trick often was good for place money.

Jordan Five Nips Favored Tech, 54-49

COLUMBUS, Feb. 4.—The Tech High Smithies of Atlanta caught Jordan High on the rebound from its surprise defeat by Marist College, of Atlanta, and went down, 54-49, here tonight in a close, evenly-fought basketball game.

Tech High had defeated the Red Jackets, 54-49, in an earlier game this season, but Bobby Land, sharpshooting Jordan forward who tallied 16 points, was too much for the Smithies to stop. Jordan's five went all the way without a substitution.

The Smithies keenly felt the loss of Bob Kirk, their high point man for the evening with 15 points, who left the game on fouls in the third quarter.

Jordan held an 11-8 lead at the first period, but Tech High went ahead, 25-23, at the half. The Jackets rallied to take a 39-36 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Jordan held the lead, 42-39, but again the Smithies came back and took a two-point lead during the final period.

The lead see-sawed all through the closing quarter. Jordan went ahead in the closing minutes and Land's last bucket, a shot that dropped through the hoop as the whistle ended the game, was just an extra thrill for the 900 spectators.

Lex Village Bill Wins Southern Derby Stake

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Lex Village Bill, lemon and white pointer owned and handled by Frank Norman, of Providence, R. I., ran away with the Derby Stake of the Southern Field Club today.

Bill, a stylish, wide ranging pointer, handled one covey find expertly and was strictly top dog in the judges' book by being steady to wing and shot. Owner Norman did an excellent job of handling.

Joe Rosenberg's Rushaway Dot was second place winner, traveling far and wide and standing out in bird work. Joe is President of the Southern Field Club.

Dot was traced with Lester Varn's Satilla Sapphire in the first brace of the morning. Dot placed second and Satilla Sapphire, after performing in a second series, was awarded third place. Owner Varn, of Jacksonville, Fla., was the handler.

John W. Grant, of Atlanta, over whose scenic Wildfair Plantation grounds part of the Derby was run, handled two dogs in the event.

Owner Norman swept the field on the final day of the derby series when Reaction, handled by him, won first place in the Puppy Stake.

Trampus, owned and handled by L. E. Alford, of Kissimmee, Fla., placed second. Arrowsmith's Georgia Boy, handled by Joe Rosenberg, placed third.

Many outstanding dogs, having qualified in other trials, will be put down in the regional, concluding event Wednesday.

One of Georgia's outstanding sportsmen, Richard Tift, past President of the Southern Amateur Field Trial Club, Monday sent his fine pointer, Prince Hot Shot, across quail-rich game preserves and won the all-age stake in outstanding fashion.

The Prince pinned four coveys and was absolutely staunch on game. The coveys were well located, Prince was steady to wing and shot and his owner-handler completed the job before a large and enthusiastic gallery that included Dr. George Myshrahl, Atlanta; George Seacrest, Wharton, Wis.; Kinison, Tioga, Pa.; and Sigo Far-

Jacket Closing Rally Overwhelms Georgia

ATHENS, Feb. 4.—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets poured on the steam in the final two minutes here tonight to defeat the fighting Georgia Bulldogs, 51-44, before a packed house in Woodruff Hall.

The game was delayed for over a half an hour by a light failure. The underdog Bulldogs made a battle of it all the way and were leading at halftime. With two and a half minutes remaining, Tech led, 45-44, but quick baskets by Heines, Bergman and Nolan iced the game.

Wes Paxon, brilliant Tech forward, paced the Jacket attack with 17 points, while Teammate Jim Nolan added 14 more. Gene Lomendo, with 17 and Bobby Healey, with 16, paced the Bulldogs.

The game was a see-saw affair from the start. Tech pulled ahead, 9-3, on goals by Nolan and Paxon, but with 11 minutes remaining in the half, its lead had been cut to 12-10.

After tie scores at 14-14 and 16-16, Healey, Al Fabian and Healey again sank quick baskets to give the Bulldogs a 22-16 halftime margin.

In the second half, the Techsters knotted the count at 28-28 after six minutes had been played. From there on, the lead changed several times.

Paxon played brilliantly to lead his mates to their first win over Georgia since 1945. In addition to the Bulldogs' high scoring forwards, E. L. Rainey, Morgan Harvill and Al Fabian were top Georgia performers.

Arnold de La Perriere, Georgia regular guard, missed the game due to illness.

In a shortened preliminary, the Georgia B team trimmed GMC, 37-24.

Gambling Laws Chief Problem Of Spalding Jury

Constitution Staff News Service. GRIFIN, Feb. 4.—A stricter enforcement of gambling laws, as urged by the County's Ministerial Association, is one of the chief problems facing the Spalding County Grand Jury holding its session at Griffin this week.

The Grand Jury also is investigating small loan business in Griffin and Spalding County. Several businesses have been charged informally with charging excess interest rates and one of the companies is said to have charged as high as 10 percent a week or $20 percent a year.

The Spalding County Ministerial Association presented the following petition to the Grand Jury: "We, the ministers of Spalding County, petition you to demand that all forms of gambling and sale of illicit liquor in the Elks Club be stopped; that gambling in hotel rooms and other known places of gambling be stopped; and that the sale of chances on automobiles, which we know to be in direct violation of the law, be discontinued immediately."

The jury also indicted Marion Hall on charges of the robbery of Mrs. A. B. Moore, a bedridden invalid, on Jan. 2. Mrs. Moore was beaten brutally with a blackjack during the robbery, which netted $44.

Seek Agreement On Negro Parks

A co-operative agreement under which Atlanta and Fulton County will share equally the cost of purchasing and developing two new Negro parks in Atlanta will be sought today.

Members of the City administration and Commissioners are scheduled to confer at 2:30 p. m. at the Fulton Courthouse and leaders expressed confidence that a workable understanding can be reached through which an additional park can be obtained in the southern section and another in the north-eastern area for use of Negroes. Need for such facilities has been cited often, and R. L. (Shorty) Doyal, Fulton Commissioner, attended a meeting of Council's Parks Committee Tuesday at which preliminaries were discussed. Doyal was accompanied by Clyde Duncan, Fulton Parks Manager, and Harold Parker, Fulton Athletics Supervisor.

NURSE UNDER 'SPELL'

Forges $40,000 in Checks To Keep Up 'Svengali'

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4.—(UP)—A plump, 34-year-old nurse, who said she had been "Tribby" to a dashing young "Svengali," was found guilty Tuesday of forging an elderly patient's name to checks totaling nearly $40,000 so that the man who had cast his "spell" over her could live in Miami, Fla., in luxury.

She was Bertha Mae Baker, pictured by her attorneys as a quiet church worker who had fallen victim to the strange charms of Alfred Verfallie, a former Army officer. She pleaded not guilty to 89 charges of forgery. He was found guilty of receiving stolen goods.

"Our relationship was very strange," Miss Baker told Judge Joseph Sherbow after she related how she met the handsome officer, then only 19, when they were working together in the early days of the war. Through her attorneys, the relationship was described as a "Tribby-Svengali" situation. A psychiatrist testified she suffered from a fear complex.

Miss Baker said she began giving Verfallie small sums of money because "he would have killed me and he'll kill me now if he gets his hands on me." Once, she said, he struck her "violently."

Last year, she continued, Verfallie discovered she was assigned to Maryland State Hospital as nurse for 85-year-old William Sellick, of Greenwich, Conn., reputed to be a millionaire. Again the strange "spell" was exerted, and Miss Baker forged Sellick's name to 89 checks totaling $35,000. Four other checks bounced because the patient's cash balance had been exhausted.

She said she never received a cent of the money. A tenth was contributed to her church. The rest went to the blond, sleek Verfallie, who allegedly spent it in Miami and at Eastern race tracks.

According to the testimony, he lived in a $200-a-week suite in one of Miami's swankiest hotels. He bought a car for $1,600, wrecked it and bought another. He bought a race horse named Stormy Bill for $1,800 and a part interest in another. Whenever his funds ran short, he called Miss Baker long distance, reversed the charges and asked for more. Then she would forge another check.

Verfallie admitted Miss Baker had given him money. But he didn't know how much, and he said he wasn't aware that she had forged checks. He thought she had inherited the money. He couldn't imagine, he said, why she insisted on giving it to him.

TAKE A LOOK AT THE 1946 RECORD:

This is the Reason Why You Are Waiting For Electric Service

If you are waiting for electric service, this is the reason why: there is a critical shortage of transformers and copper wire. Because of this shortage, 14,733 applicants for electric service were on file at the end of 1946.

It is clear, from the record shown, that last year we received far less of these items than were ordered for delivery in 1946—and we ordered them months in advance, some as long as a year and a half ahead of time.

The reason we did not get all we ordered is that manufacturers could not meet the big demand.

With the materials we did receive, over 32,000 new customers were added to our lines in 1946—40% more than ever in any one year in our history.

Had the balance of transformers and wire we ordered been received, it would have been sufficient to meet our needs, and thousands more would now be enjoying electric service instead of waiting for it.

Situation Now

Frankly, we see little relief in the immediate future. New applications are pouring in at the rate of about 2,000 a month. Manufacturers still cannot catch up with the big backlog of orders.

We are doing all we can to speed up deliveries. Not a day passes that we aren't "after" manufacturers to rush needed materials. We are going to stay at it day in and day out.

You will be notified just as soon as it is possible to provide your service. In the meantime, please be patient. Although your application is one out of nearly 15,000, you can be sure that it is receiving our most careful attention.

Group Approves Eight-Year Limit On Presidency

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A constitutional amendment limiting any President to a maximum of eight years in the White House won overwhelming approval Tuesday of the House Judiciary Committee.

Its action by a 20-to-6 vote—with six Democrats dissenting—followed rejection of a proposal to limit Presidents to one six-year term.

The proposed restriction, outgrowth of Franklin D. Roosevelt's third and fourth-term elections, may come to a vote in the House Thursday. If approved by a two-thirds vote both there and in the Senate, the amendment will be submitted to the States. If 36 or more States ratify it, it will be-

Jewish leaders, meanwhile, debated what course of action they should take on the British ultimatum, delivered Monday night to the Jewish Agency, official representative for some 600,000 Palestine Jews, and the Jewish National Council (Vaad Leumi).

There was still no official comment concerning the fate of Dov Bela Gruner, 33, whose sentence to hang started the current tension in Palestine. KANSAS HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES ASKS ARNALL TO ADDRESS LEGISLATURE

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 4.—(INS)—Former Gov. Arnall, of Georgia, Tuesday was invited to speak at the Kansas House of Representatives on affairs of government. Arnall will address a student meeting at Kansas State College Feb. 14 and was asked in a resolution introduced by Rep. E. E. Woods, Republican, of Independence, and Minority Floor Leader Herb Barr, Democrat, of Leoti, to speak to the House.

The resolution described Arnall as having an "outstanding record of leadership" and noted that recent events in Georgia "were of interest to all State Legislatures."

come effective as a part of the Constitution. As written by Chairman Michener, Republican, Michigan, of the Judiciary Committee, the amendment puts a ceiling of two terms or parts of terms on Presidential tenure. Hence it could have the effect of limiting individuals in certain cases to four years and a day in the Presidency.

A Vice President succeeding to the Presidency on the last day of an elected President's term, for instance, would have served part of that term and would be eligible for only one more term. Republicans said they were certain they could muster the required two-thirds vote in the House.

Step right up and meet a Sweetheart

It's BUICK for '47!

STEP up now, good people, and meet the fashion master of the new season.

Here's Buick for 1947 — style-wise, performance-wise, quality-wise and value-wise the sweetest "buy" your dollars are going to find anywhere this year.

Eye well that sparkling new grille—behind it you'll be plainly marked as strictly up to 1947 in your travel standards.

Take in the tapering grace of long, sweep-through fenders — there's the hallmark of a style pattern sure to bring you notice and approval wherever you may go.

Note the reach of the bonnet — long, deep, broad-chested — there's a lifetime of thrills in such bountiful supply of Buick Fireball straight-eight power.

Spot the solid footing of a carriage big as you deserve — the breadth of beam that spells room aplenty — the ready-to-go poise of four coil-sprung wheels ready to level the roughest roads into boulevard smoothness.

And in particular, mark down this:

Not one smart model but nine will present this fresh front to the world this season.

Cars in three series, three wheelbases and three price ranges give you a triple-barreled chance to know Buick size, Buick beauty, Buick ability when you travel.

Choose from two versions of the garage-handy SPECIAL — four of the light-footed SUPER — three of the great-hearted ROADMASTER series.

ONLY BUICK HAS ALL THESE STAR FEATURES

- AIRFOIL FENDERS — a sleek, car-length, tapering contour of distinctive beauty.
- FIREBALL POWER — from valve-in-head straight-eight engines in two sizes.
- ACCURATE CYLINDER BORING — smoothness from the start and an engine that "stays young."
- FLITEWEIGHT PISTONS — for flashing action, swift response, reduced load on bearings.
- BUICOIL SPRINGING — Buick-developed all-coil springing for perpetual smoothness and "panthergait" ride.
- FULL-LENGTH TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE — protects moving parts, gives steadiness in traveling.
- PERMI-FIRM STEERING — light but positive control with reduced need for adjustments.
- BROADRIM WHEELS — for peak tire mileage, better car control, freedom from heel-over on curves.
- STEPPON PARKING BRAKE — sets with a toe-touch, eliminates awkward hand setting.
- DEEPEX SEAT CUSHIONS — giving luxury comfort in all models, three-person room on all seats.
- CURL-AROUND BUMPERS — front and rear, originated by Buick to protect sheet metal. Built for bumper jack.
- NINE SMART MODELS — in three series, all with Terret Top Body by Fisher.

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR on the air twice weekly

In each you'll find a rich abundance of the things that make Buick America's most wanted automobile — engines that seem to stay forever young, the matchless buoyancy of BuicCoil springing, the spaciousness of great room, the feathery handling of controls that are always "obediently yours."

Naturally — demand is going to be great; a sweetheart like this is bound to bring the suitors flocking.

So how about coming in — right away — and getting your order on our books?

Von Papen Trial Interrupted To Put Him in Jail

NUERNBERG, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Franz von Papen was arrested in the middle of his denazification trial Tuesday on charges of giving false testimony about the purported will of Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg and was thrown into a German jail.

The sly diplomat who spent nearly a year behind bars here in an American-operated jail as one of the defendants in the International War Crimes trial, was arrested this time on the orders of Camill Sachs, German Denazification Court President, who said his belief in von Papen's veracity was shaken.

Since his acquittal of war crimes von Papen had been living at his own quarters, although under indictment in the denazification procedure.

The fortunes of von Papen, who wept in court Monday because he said nobody believed him, took their new turn when two witnesses swore that he drew up the purported will of the late German President, von Hindenburg, which bestowed an accolade upon Adolf Hitler and was instrumental in making him Fuehrer.

Von Papen's trial will resume Wednesday, with the defendant escorted to court by police.

VOCATIONAL PROGRAM ARRANGED

Georgia To Segregate, Train Juvenile Prisoners

By CLARK HOWELL, JR.

For the first time in the history of the State, Georgia's juvenile criminals will have a vocational and educational program in an institution separate from the "hardened" prisoners in the Tattall State Prison.

This announcement was made Tuesday by C. A. Williams, State Director of Corrections. The new program will begin Feb. 16 at the Battery State Hospital at Rome under the direction of George Lewis, who will hold the title of Superintendent in Charge of Training Program and will have eight assistants on his staff.

In explaining the purpose of the segregated training program for Georgia's juvenile prisoners, Williams said the boys would cost the State less under this program than they do at the Tattall State Prison.

Under an arrangement made by Williams and the State Board of Health, which operates the Battery State Hospital, the hospital will house and feed the boys in return for their caring for the thousand-acre farm and the hospital's fine dairy herd.

Williams said the hospital now had slightly less than a thousand patients, but made it clear the boys would have absolutely no contact with any of the patients. The hospital is in a separate wing of the hospital and in barracks outside of the hospital building.

According to Williams, 60 boys have been housed at the hospital for several months and 30 more will be transferred from Tattall within 10 days. The vocational and educational training program will begin Feb. 16.

Before this arrangement was made, we had only two places to send our juvenile prisoners—to the Tattall State Prison or to a County public work camp," Williams said. "It is our firm conviction that when the State penal system takes charge of a young boy, we must assume the moral obligation of seeing to it the boy is as good as or better than when the State received him. Under this educational and training program the boy leads the life of a farm boy and when he returns to society, the transition will be normal."

Mrs. Milton Hall Named Chairman for Fashionata

Mrs. Milton F. Hall will serve as General Chairman for Fashionata of 1947, according to announcement by Mrs. Edward M. Chapman, Jr., President of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School.

The five-act theatrical will open at the Erlanger Theater Monday evening, March 10, for six evening performances, and matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. It will be the second Fashionata sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle and produced by Rich's, under the direction of Miss Francis Bemis.

Mrs. Hall, a past Vice President of the Circle, served in important capacities in the Circle's presentation of the "Wilson" premiere, and in last year's production of Fashionata.

The money realized from Fashionata will start a fund for a school library at Tallulah Falls School, to be named the Passie Fenton Ottley Library, as a memorial to the late Mrs. Ottley, founder of the Young Matrons' Circle, and a devoted worker for the school in the mountains which is the Circle's sole project.

Seats for Fashionata may be reserved by telephoning the Fashionata office at Walnut 4636, Extension 608.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Mrs. Oppenheimer Returns Visit of American GI's

One of the most attractive visitors Atlanta has entertained in some time is Mrs. Louis Oppenheimer, of Gerrard Cross, England, who admits casually that during the war she entertained 1,600 American soldiers, made 1,100 cakes, and seven and one-half tons of jam for hospitalized soldiers.

Known throughout the literary world as "Carloti," the charming British poetess is at the Biltmore Hotel for several days on a tour of the United States which began last October when she landed in New York. Her trip was inspired by a desire to visit the many friends she made in England during the war, and who live in scattered places from Washington to San Francisco. To sum up her wartime friends is the object of the book she is in the process of writing, called "From GIs to Generals."

Mrs. Oppenheimer has visited Atlanta before as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer. In fact, "Chuck" Palmer is partly responsible for her wide acquaintance with the GIs and generals. When the war began, she wrote her Atlanta friends and asked how she could best entertain the boys in England and provide as much home atmosphere as possible. "Chuck" suggested that she contact the Red Cross, and later he sent some of his personal friends to call on her. It wasn't long before Mrs. Oppenheimer and her husband, who is a director of the South African Diamond Syndicate, were entertaining GIs and generals at Sunday dinner and at tea at their charming home, The Lantern Cottage, just 18 miles from London. Mrs. Oppenheimer's charm and friendliness captured the hearts of the American soldiers, many of whom wrote their families back home to send the English matron the hard-to-get items.

Mrs. Oppenheimer is enthusiastic about her visit to the States and meeting her wartime friends and their families. She is also impressed with the modern way of life, with special emphasis on housing conditions, sewerage systems, washing machines and other electrical appliances. Housing is one of her hobbies, and before the war she converted a whole street of old houses into charming dwelling "news" for working people. This hobby strikes a mutual bond of interest with "Chuck" Palmer, whom President Roosevelt sent to England on a special housing mission. Mrs. Oppenheimer likes gardening, is an authority on fine liquors and preserves, and has traveled all over the world. She speaks English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Russian and Dutch.

Her visit here coincides with the meeting of the Atlanta Branch of the English-Speaking Union tomorrow evening at the High Museum of Art, when she will speak on the subject, "From GIs to Generals," outlining her experiences in entertaining the Americans in wartime. This evening Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will entertain at a small dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club in her honor. Yesterday Mrs. Palmer entertained a group for luncheon at the club for the lovely English visitor, who will remain here until next Wednesday. She will return to England on the Queen Elizabeth.

Nancy May Do Picture If Frankie Gives Consent

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—(INS) If Nancy Sinatra wants to become a movie actress the gate is wide open at Twentieth Century Fox. Henry Hathaway, director of "Kiss of Death," isn't looking for a great actress for the role of the gangster's wife. But he does want a sweet, unassuming little Italian girl—and he will ask Nancy to make a test. Frankie, however, may not consent.

Vic Mature will be the hero—a crook who goes to prison rather than reveal the identity of his accomplices and then, when they let his wife (Nancy's role) starve to death, turns State's evidence.

Marlene Dietrich's first hit in this country, "The Blue Angel," will be remade—but by Mexico's Pan-American Company. It will star Fortunio Bonanova and the Latin-American beauty, Maria Felix.

"Blue Angel" will be made in Spanish—no English version.

PERTUSSIN FOR BAD COUGHS

(CAUSED BY COLDS)

Pertussin must be good when thousands of doctors have prescribed it for so many years. Pertussin acts at once to relieve such coughing. It actually loosens phlegm and makes it easier to raise. Safe and effective for both old and young. Pleasant tasting, too!

Fashion Events

"Camellias for feminine adornment" will be the theme of the luncheon fashion show at the Biltmore Wednesday. Hats made of fresh camellias will compete for approval with camellia-trimmed hats made by Lilly Dache especially for this show. One of fashion's favored colors for Spring, a soft shade of pink, will be shown in woollens prints and cottons, and Nettie Rosenstein's black dresses will be worn with fresh camellias. Honor guests at the luncheon will be Camellia Club officers and committeewomen for the Atlanta Camellia Show. Mrs. Charles Whitner, Jr.'s creative design of camellias built around an antique doll will be the centerpiece for the guest table.

Walter Florell, young and talented millinery designer, will make his first appearance in Atlanta on Feb. 13, when he is bringing a trunkful of his Spring hats to show. Under the sponsorship of George Muse's millinery salon, a tea-time fashion show, open to the public, has been arranged at the Biltmore. Mr. Florell, only 29, and handsome as a movie star, will commentate his own hat presentation.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

If You Have a Problem, I'll Try To Solve It

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "I've recently met a boy I like very much, and he has already asked me for several dates. But they're always for Friday night. And I've had to turn them all down. Junior high dancing class is held on Friday nights and my mother won't let me skip it. He probably suspects me of just making excuses so I won't have to go out with him... and that's not so. How can I keep our relationship going... I really like him very much!"

It's tough luck that the things he wants to take you to happen on Friday nights. Why not say so frankly the next time you see him? And suggest that you do something together some other night. If he doesn't have any ideas, you cook up a few suggestions. Create an opportunity soon for asking a boy to go somewhere with you, and ask him. That will give you a chance to clear the air between you.

MAKE A DEAL. DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "I'm sixteen... and it seems that every boy I date wants me to go steady with him. When I tell them all that I don't want to go steady... I'm too young... they never call me for another date? What shall I do?"

Perhaps you turn them down so abruptly that you chill them to the bone. When a boy asks you to go steady he's offering you his exclusive time, attention and affection. It's all pretty special to him. If you turn it down with a curt "I don't want to," or "I don't believe in it," or "I don't like you enough"... any boy is bound to take that personally. Why not ease the blow by a frank discussion of your point of view... explain that to you it's more fun to go steady with a boy when it turns out that you only enjoy dates with him. Then going steady sneaks up on you. If you've only dated a boy a few times you wouldn't know whether you want to go only with him. That way you don't give him the positive cold shoulder. You make yourself quite clear. And you might intrigue a boy into testing out your theory!

LIKE SALT AND PEPPER. DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "My girlfriend and I have been intimate friends for nearly five years now. And it seems that every time I get a boyfriend she likes him too... and then we have a fight over him! My mother has already warned me about not seeing her so much. But we both have such good times together that we use to stay together. But whenever one of us gets a boy's attention, the other one wants it too. Our friendship will break up, unless we can get this settled. What can we do?"

There are two things you can do. The first is to get the air cleared between you. It's all right to be as close as you two girls are... but you both have a right to your private lives. You don't have to share everything. Particularly your men! Talk this thing over between you... without any hurt feelings, if possible... and make it clear that from now on her men are her business... they don't concern you. And that goes for you, too.

And before your friendship comes completely unstuck from too much intimacy, make a point of going around with other girls. It's more than generous of you to share everything you do with that one girl. But it blinds you to the fun you can have with other people!

Miss Mary Olds Weds Mr. Smith. Miss Mary Olds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Olds, became the bride of Graham J. Smith, of Ft. Myers, Fla., recently. The marriage, performed by Rev. E. M. Altman, of the Grant
